INTRODUCTION

This paper provides a summary of the 2017 Western Australian election. It contains details of voting for all Legislative Assembly districts and Legislative Council regions, as well as relevant summary statistics for both chambers.

The 2017 election was the second held following the introduction of fixed date elections and the third since the introduction of one-vote one-value electorate boundaries for the Legislative Assembly. It was conducted following a redistribution that abolished one non-metropolitan district and added an extra seat to South Metropolitan Region.

Format for Legislative Assembly Results

For each Legislative Assembly district, details of the first preference votes and percentages received by each candidate are provided, as well as the final count after the distribution of preferences. Where appropriate, an alternative two-party preferred count is included. The format for the results is as follows:

First Count: The total of first preferences for each candidate is shown, with the candidate's percentages calculated by dividing the first preference vote by the formal vote. Swing is calculated by subtracting the percentage vote received by the party at the 2013 election from the percentage received at the 2017 election. Where the parties contesting differ from the 2013 election, 'ghost' candidates (indicated by '...') have been included to represent candidates not contesting the current election. All results from 2013 have been adjusted to take account of the redistribution.

Final Count: Represents the two-candidate preferred count after the full distribution of preferences. Ballot papers that did not include a preference choosing between the final two candidates are included in the total for 'Exhausted' votes. Two-candidate preferred percentages are calculated by dividing the two-candidate preferred vote for each candidate by the total votes remaining in the count, that is the formal vote minus the exhausted votes. Two-candidate preferred swings are shown compared to the results of the 2013 election adjusted for the redistribution. Where the party composition of the final two candidates differs from the 2013 election (e.g. Kalgoorlie), ghost candidates appear and three swing figures are shown.

2-Party Preferred: This total appears in electorates that did not finish as a contest between Labor and Liberal candidates at either the 2013 or 2017 elections. It shows the alternate two-party preferred count between Labor and Liberal/National candidates, as well as change in percentage vote since the 2013 election.

Two-Candidate Preferred versus Two-Party Preferred Results

The final or two-candidate preferred count for an electorate is the final tally of votes after the formal distribution of preferences. It is a count conducted by the successive exclusion of the lowest polling candidates and the re-examination of their ballot papers to determine the next available preference. The two-party preferred count represents a similar distribution of preferences, but at all stages retains the final two candidates as representatives of the Labor and Liberal or National Parties.

At the 2017 election, 51 of the 59 Legislative Assembly districts finished as two-candidate preferred contests between Labor and Liberal candidates, five as Labor-National contests (Albany, Central Wheatbelt, North West Central, Pilbara, Warren-Blackwood), two as National versus Liberal contest (Moore, Roe) and one as a Labor-Independent contest (Baldivis). Unlike recent elections, the WA Electoral Commission did not conduct alternative two-party preferred counts.

Estimates of Two-Party Preferred Vote

For Baldivis, Moore and Roe, this publication uses estimated two-party preferred counts. The WAEC's published preference count for the three seats has been used until the final exclusion, after which the following estimates have been used to estimate final two-party preferred count.

In Baldivis, Independent Matt Whitfield has been excluded at the final exclusion and his preferences distributed 54.8% to Labor and 45.2% to Liberal. This was the preference flow on the exclusion of Independent Carol Adams in Kwinana at the 2013 election.

In Moore and Roe, the Liberal candidate has been excluded at the final distribution rather than the Labor candidate, creating a Labor versus National two-party preferred count. Liberal preferences have been distributed 83.8% to National and 16.2% to Labor, the average Liberal preference flow on exclusion in the preference distributions for Albany and Warren-Blackwood.

Liberal or National Candidates in Two-Party Preferred Counts

In 2013 the WA Electoral Commission counted out all seats to finish as Labor versus Liberal contests. After taking account of the redistribution, this publication has used these Labor versus Liberal counts in all electorates, except for Pilbara where the actual Labor versus National preference count from 2013 has been used as the two-party preferred count.

Historically the flow of National preferences to Liberal has been weaker than the reverse flow of Liberal preferences to National. This means the Labor versus Liberal counts from 2013 recorded a lower non-Labor two-party preferred count compared to what would have been produced by Labor versus National counts. This was certainly the case in Pilbara, where in 2013 the Liberal two-party percentage versus Labor was 53.8%, but the National two-party percentage versus Labor was 61.5%. This publication has used the Labor versus National count as the historical two-party preferred count in Pilbara, but the WAEC's alternative Labor versus Liberal counts, adjusted for the redistribution, have been used in seven electorates. These are Central Wheatbelt, Geraldton, Kalgoorlie, Moore, North West Central, Roe and Warren-Blackwood.

Five electorates counted out as Labor-Liberal contests in 2013 finished as Labor-National contests in 2017. These electorates were Albany, Central Wheatbelt, Moore, North West Central and Roe. The change from National preferences being distributed in 2013 to Liberal preferences in 2017 increased the non-Labor two-party preferred count. This change to the non-Labor candidate has resulted in these five electorates recording the smallest swings to Labor at the 2017 election.

Summary of Redistribution, Notional Seat Status and Sitting Members

A summary of the 2015 redistribution can be found on page 106. It includes old and new margins for all seats, along with notes on retiring members. More detail on the redistribution can be found in "2015 Redistribution Western Australia: Analysis of New Electoral Boundaries", Western Australian Parliamentary Library Election Papers Series No. 1/2015. The publication also includes estimates for the adjusted Legislative Council regions.

In summary, the redistribution made the following changes.

- The Liberal seat of Eyre in Mining and Pastoral Region was abolished, divided between the National seats of Kalgoorlie and Wagin, the new seat re-named Roe.
- A new notionally Labor held seats called Baldivis was created in southern Perth.
- Ocean Reef was re-named Burns Beach and Gosnells re-named Thornlie.
- The east-west aligned southern Perth seats of Alfred Cove and Bateman were re-aligned north-south, the electorate name Bateman retained but Alfred Cove abolished and a new seat called Bicton created.
- The redistribution altered the boundaries of Labor-held Collie-Preston and West Swan to the extent that both became notional Liberal seats. Both seats were re-contested by their sitting Labor MLAs.

Electorates have been classified in this publication based on their notional party status following the redistribution. Hence both Collie-Preston and West Swan are classified as notional Liberal seats, becoming notional Labor gains on the re-election of the sitting Labor MLAs.

In Hillarys, MLA Rob Johnson resigned from the Liberal Party and re-contested as an Independent. He is shown as a sitting member, but Hillarys has been classed as a Liberal seat based on 2013 results.

In Roe, National MLA for Wagin Terry Waldron retired and Liberal MLA for abolished Eyre, Graham Jacobs, contested Roe. Jacobs is shown as a sitting member, but Roe has been classed as a notional National seat based on 2013 results.

A summary of defeated and newly elected members for both the Assembly and the Council can be found on page 103.

By-elections and Casual Vacancies

Exhausted Votes

Under the WA Electoral Act, Legislative Assembly ballot papers with a valid first preference vote, but a duplicate or broken sequences of further preferences, can remain in the count as formal votes. Depending on the preferences, these ballot papers can 'exhaust' preferences before reaching one of the final two candidates in the contest. Ballot papers of this type are often called 'Langer' votes, a reference to the political activist who advocated voting in this manner when the same formality rules applied for Commonwealth elections. The small number of exhausted ballots in each electorate are indicated in the results.

Results Decided on Preferences

Of the 59 seats in the Legislative Assembly, 24 were won on first preferences, 18 by Labor and six by the Liberal Party. Labor won 19 seats after leading on first preferences and four after trailing on first preferences (Bicton, Joondalup, Kalamunda and Kingsley). The Liberal Party won six seats after leading on first preferences and the National Party won five. The Liberal Party won Geraldton after trailing Labor on first preferences, though the combined Liberal and National first preference vote was greater than Labor's first preference vote.

Of the 36 Legislative Council seats, 23 were elected during the initial stages of the count from quotas filled in first preferences. The filled quotas elected 13 Labor, seven Liberal and three National MLCs. The remaining 13 MLCs were elected by the distribution of preferences. Six were elected after leading on votes remaining after the election of candidates with filled quotas, and seven were elected after trailing in the count in the early stages.

Preference Distribution Tables

With the assistance of the WA Electoral Commission, the forms used to capture indicative preference counts on election night have been collated for further analysis (see page 36). Tables are provided showing actual preference flows by party for votes cast and counted in polling places on election day. Where available, information on party how-to-vote recommendations have been provided.

Format for Legislative Council Results

Results for the Legislative Council are provided in several formats beginning on page 44. Overall Council totals are provided as well as summary tables of the change in party vote in each region. The Legislative Council region tables display party totals as both percentages and quotas of votes.

Following the summary tables, a more detailed breakdown of support by candidate and ballot paper group is provided for each region. The total number of ticket votes for each group is shown as well as the percentage of each group's vote that were ticket votes. Sitting members, elected and defeated candidates are shown.

A summary of the distribution of preferences follows the detailed table for each region. These summaries explain the complex preference distributions that decided the final seats in each region.

Following the preference distribution, tables have been provided that break down the Legislative Council result by lower house electorate. This is followed on page 84 by a series of ordered tables that set out party Legislative Council results by electorate, ordered by lowest party vote to highest. This includes a table of overall non-major party vote by electorate, and the percentage of 'Above the Line' votes recorded in each electorate.

At the end of the Legislative Council section, a table comparing upper and lower house results for the larger parties is provided on page 100.

I would like to express my thanks to the staff of the Western Australian Electoral Commission for their assistance in providing the data used in preparing this publication. All results have been taken from the drafts of the official Statistical Returns and checked against the WA Electoral Commission's website.

I would like to give special thanks to Electoral Commissioner David Kerlake for agreeing to make the documents related to election night indicative preference counts available (Form PP44). These forms have been compiled into a series of tables on preference flows at the election (see page 36). While the WAEC provided copies of the forms, they are working documents only and not verified by the WAEC against official results. The author has engaged in some basic checking of the documents and takes full responsibility for all assumptions and calculations in the preference tables.

All calculations of percentages and swing in this publication are the responsibility of the author, who also takes full responsibility for errors and omissions.

Statistical Highlights

- A record number of parties (14) were registered for the 2017 election and a record 717 candidates contested the election. 415 candidates nominated for the 59 Legislative Assembly districts, an average of 7.0 candidates per district. The previous record was 375 candidates for 57 electorates in 2005, an average of 6.5 candidates per electorate. There were 302 candidates for the Legislative Council, an average of 8.4 candidates per vacancy. This passed the previous record of 185 candidates and 5.4 candidates per vacancy in 2005. The number of candidates varied from 45 in North Metropolitan to 58 in South Metropolitan, all regions passing the previous record of 41 candidates in Agricultural Region in 2013.
- The number of groups/columns on Legislative Council ballot papers ranged from 19 in East and North Metropolitan to a record 25 in South Metropolitan, all regions passing the previous record of 16 columns in North Metropolitan at the 2008 election.
- A record 1,593,222 electors were enrolled to vote, an increase of 12.8% since 2013, twice the average growth rate over the six previous terms of parliament. Much of the growth took place after Western Australia adopted the Commonwealth's procedures for direct electoral enrolment, closing an enrolment gap that the Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) estimated at around 140,000 between the State and Commonwealth rolls. (Estimate taken from the AEC's submission to the Commonwealth Parliament's Joint Standing Committee on Electoral Matters.)
- The adoption of a new format for the Legislative Council ballot paper, along with more targeted education campaigns, reduced the rate of Legislative Assembly informal voting from 6.0% to 4.5%. The rate of Legislative Council informal voting remained low at 2.7%.
- The Barnett government was defeated in 2017 by the largest swing seen at a Western Australian election. The 12.8 two-party preferred swing to Labor was greater than the combined swings against Labor at the last three elections, 0.6% in 2005, 4.0% in 2008 and 5.3% in 2013. The swing was greater than the 8.1% swing when Labor was last elected to government in 2001.
- The key feature of the result was the collapse in the Liberal Party's first preference vote. In the Assembly Liberal support fell 15.9 percentage points to 31.2%, the lowest first preference vote recorded at an election where the Liberal Party contested every seat. In the Council Liberal support fell 20.9 percentage points to 26.7%. The Liberal Party lost support to both Labor and Pauline Hanson's One Nation.
- Labor's first preference support in the Assembly rose 9.1 percentage points to 42.2%, Labor's highest first preference vote since 42.5% in 1989. In the Council Labor's vote rose 7.9 percentage points to 40.4%, only the third time since the Council's re-structure in 1989 that Labor's vote has passed 40%. The other two occasions were 41.3% in 1989 and 43.4% in 2005.
- Labor won 41 Assembly seats, passing the 32 seats won by Labor at four of its five election victories between 1983 and 2005. Labor's seats represent 69.5% of the Assembly, greater than Labor's previous record of 68% in 1911 when Labor won 34 of the then 50 seats. Labor's two-party preferred vote of 55.5% passed the estimated 54.6% when Brian Burke led Labor to government in 1983.
- Comparing Labor's result to recent Liberal/National victories, the Barnett government recorded 57.2% of the two-party preferred vote and won 38 seats in 2013. In 1996 the Court government recorded 55.2% of the two-party preferred vote and won 35 of the 57 Assembly seats.
- The Nationals only contested non-Metropolitan seats. The party's support in those areas fell 2.2 percentage points to 21.9% compared with the Liberal Party's non-metropolitan fall of 15.5 points to 23.6%. At recent elections, the National non-metropolitan vote has been 24.1% in 2013, 19.3% in 2008, 14.6% in 2005 and 12.6% in 2001.
- Green Assembly support rose to 8.9%, up 0.5 percentage points compared to 2013 but short of the 11.9% recorded in 2008. In the Council Green support rose 0.4 percentage point to 8.6%, short of the 11.1% recorded in 2008. The party increased its Council representation from two to four seats.
- Pauline Hanson's One Nation contested 35 of the 59 Assembly seats and all six Council regions. The party polled 4.9% (including the vote of four disendorsed candidates) in the Assembly, averaging 8.5% in the seats it contested. The party polled 8.2% in the Council, 7.2% in Perth and 11.4% in non-metropolitan regions, and elected members in East Metropolitan, Mining and Pastoral and South West regions.

- One Nation did not match its first WA election result in 2001. In the Council One Nation polled 7.2% in the metropolitan area compared to 7.6% in 2001, and 11.4% in non-metropolitan Council contests compared to 16.5% in 2001. One Nation took votes from both Liberal and National in 2001, but took fewer votes from the Nationals in 2017.
- The Liberal Democratic Party elected its first MLC in 2017 from South Metropolitan Region. Party name confusion may have played a part. The Liberal Democrats appeared to the left of the Liberal Party in the region and polled 3.9%, four times its vote in other regions where it appeared to the right of the Liberal Party, and 57% of the party's state vote was recorded in South Metropolitan.
- Of the 59 members in the old Assembly, 35 were re-elected, 20 defeated and four retired. All 21 Labor MLAs were re-elected. Of the 31 Liberal MLAs, 10 were re-elected, 18 defeated, two retired and former Liberal MLA Rob Johnson was defeated re-contesting as an Independent. Of the seven National MLAs, five were re-elected, one defeated and one retired. See details of now and departing members on page 103.
- There were 24 new members elected to the Legislative Assembly at the 2017 election, including two members transferring from the Legislative Council (one Labor, one Liberal). There were 20 new Labor MLAs, all elected in seats gained at the election. Of the three new Liberals, two won seats held by the party before the election while Kalgoorlie was gained from the Nationals. The one new National MLA replaced a retiring MLA.
- Labor gained 18 lower house seats from the Liberal Party, one from the National Party, and Labor MLAs were re-elected in the notionally Liberal-held seats of Collie-Preston and West Swan. The Liberal Party gained Kalgoorlie from the National Party.
- In the Legislative Council 21 members were re-elected and there were 15 new members. Of the 15 departing members, 10 were defeated, three contested the Legislative Assembly with two elected, while two MLCs did not re-contest. Of the 15 new members, five retained seats already held by their party while ten gained seats for their party.
- Of the Liberal Party's 17 members in the old Council, seven were re-elected six defeated, two retired and one defeated after switching party. There were two new Liberal MLCs. Of Labor's 11 members in the old council, nine were re-elected, one defeated, one was elected to the lower house and there were five new members. Three Nationals were re-elected, one defeated, one defeated contesting the lower house and there was one new member.
- That Labor's victory in seats was much greater than in recent decades owes much to the election being the first won by Labor since the introduction of one-vote one-value electoral boundaries. In 2005 Labor won 52.3% of the two-party preferred, and adjusted for the one-vote one-value boundaries used in 2008, Labor notionally held 38 seats going into the 2008 election. It is possible to compare the seats held by Labor in 2017 with notional seat holdings in 2008.
- In 2017 Labor regained the six seats it lost in 2013, Balcatta, Belmont, Forrestfield, Joondalup, Perth and Pilbara. It also gained 10 seats it notionally lost in 2008, Bunbury, Darling Range, Jandakot, Kingsley, Morley, Mount Lawley, Burns Beach (formerly Ocean Reef), Southern River, Swan Hills and Wanneroo. Labor also won the new seat of Baldivis.
- Compared to one-vote one-value notional seat holdings ahead of the 2008 election., the additional seats Labor holds after the 2017 election are Albany, Kalamunda and Murray-Wellington. The two 2008 notional Labor seats that Labor did not win in 2017 were North West (Central) and Riverton. These comments relate only to the names of seats won at the last three elections and do not take account of changes to electoral boundaries.
- Despite the much-discussed preference 'deal' between the Liberal Party and One Nation, One Nation preferences did not change the result in any Assembly seat. In the Legislative Council, a very small bundle of Liberal preferences elected One Nation in Mining and Pastoral region, but One Nation would probably have won the seat anyway. Liberal preferences played no part in One Nation's other victories.
- Overall Green preferences flowed 83.2% to Labor, around ten percentage points stronger than at previous elections. One Nation preferences also flowed more strongly than in the past, 60.6% to the Liberal/National Parties, Australian Christian preferences flowing 73.9% to Liberal/National.

Swings for Baldivis, Moore and Roe are based on estimated two-party preferred counts for the 2017 election. Underlining indicates seats that changed party compared to their notional party status following the redistribution. Note that Collie-Preston and West Swan were notional Liberal seats defended by sitting Labor MLAs.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY: ELECTORATES RANKED BY PRE-ELECTION MARGIN

Electoral District	2PP Votes		2PP Percent		Swing
	Labor	Liberal	Labor	Liberal
Marginal Liberal (7)	103840	60897	63.0	37.0	15.7 to Labor
Safe Liberal (8)	100621	85079	54.2	45.8	14.1 to Labor
Very Safe Liberal (17)	183271	216315	45.9	54.1	13.1 to Labor

Very Safe Labor (2)	33301	12187	73.2	26.8	8.9 to Labor
Labor (20)	302224	142732	67.9	32.1	12.7 to Labor

Electoral districts are classified by their estimated post-redistribution margin based on 2013 results. Marginal seats are defined as those with margins of 6% or under. Safe seats are defined as margins of 6-12%, and Very Safe seats are those with margins above 12%.

If an alternative classification is used with Collie-Preston and West Swan as marginal Labor seats, then the two-party preferred swing in the remaining five marginal Liberal seats would have been 14.8, the swing in all Liberal seats 13.7, the swing in marginal Labor seats 13.8 and the swing in all Labor seats 13.1.

Summaries of Preference Flows

The tables on the following pages have been compiled from indicative preference counts conducted on election night in each polling place. The preferences were recorded on Form PP44, copies of which have been made available by the WA Electoral Commission. The forms record preference data for election night information purposes only and are not part of the official count.

Forms from 741 of the 759 polling places were available. Equivalent data for postal, pre-poll, absent and other declaration vote categories were not available. The tables on the following pages represent the flows of preferences recorded by ordinary votes cast within a voter's home electorate on polling day and represents around 57% of all formal votes cast at the election. They provide an indication of voter preference decisions and how they were influenced by how to vote material.

The following notes explain the tables.

- The WAEC conducted indicative preference counts between Labor and Liberal candidates in 52 electorates, between Labor and National in Pilbara, and between Liberal and National in Central Wheatbelt, Kalgoorlie, Moore, North West Central, Roe and Warren-Blackwood.
- In six electorates, the WAEC predicted an incorrect pairing of final candidates. Of the six chosen Liberal-National finishes, three finished as National-Labor finishes, Central Wheatbelt, North West Central and Warren-Blackwood, while Kalgoorlie finished as a Liberal-Labor contests. The Nationals finished second to Labor in Albany while Baldivis finished as a contest between Labor and an Independent.
- The first preference percentages shown may differ from final results as the tables are of polling day votes only. The totals are also first counts conducted by polling place staff on election night and do not include changes produced by later check counting.
- The percentage preference flows shown are calculated as a percentage of ballot papers with preferences. The two columns may not add to the total first preferences on each line due to exhausted preferences and to errors on the original forms.
- Bolding indicates where a party received more than 50% of a third party's preferences.
- On the total line, the percentage first preference vote is calculated as a percentage of the vote in the listed electorates, not of the state.
- Separate tables are provided by party for both the 53 Labor versus Liberal/National preference counts and for the six Liberal-National counts.
- Where it has been possible to locate how-to-vote material, a note is made in the tables of preference recommendations.
- The tables indicate where a party benefited from 'donkey' votes. Where a minor party draws the top position on the ballot paper, the small number of voters who choose to number directly down the ballot paper can give a small advantage to the final party listed higher on the ballot paper. Donkey votes appear more clearly for candidates with a low first preference vote.
- The Greens recommended preferences towards Labor in every electorate, producing flows to Labor in every electorate and an overall flow to Labor of 83.2%.
- One Nation recommended a preference for the Liberal Party over Labor in every electorate. This included Pilbara where the further preference recommendation was to Labor ahead of National. Pilbara recorded the weakest non-Labor preference flow (53.8%) and the overall flow was 60.6%.
- The Christian Democrats recommended preferences towards the Liberal Party over Labor in all but two electorates resulting in an overall preference flow to the Liberal party of 73.9%.
- Most other preference flows were weak or showed little influence from how-to-vote material.
- In Liberal-National contests, Labor and One Nation recommended preferences for the Liberal Party over the Nationals, but voters generally ignored the recommendation and overall preferences flowed to the Nationals.

On the tally of first preferences the Labor Party had enough votes to elect three members and the Liberal Party one. The partial quotas beyond the filled quotas had the Liberal Party leading on 0.7467 quotas, the Greens 0.6232, One Nation 0.5619 and Labor 0.2554. The combined total for the other 15 groups on the ballot paper was 0.8128 quotas.

Thirteen groups had been excluded to the point where only six candidates remained in the race for the final two vacancies. The Australian Christians had received preference tickets from two groups, 2,257 from the Micro Business Party and 6,391 from the Shooters, Fishers and Farmers. The other 11 groups had delivered 18,115 ticket votes to Fluoride Free WA. Both the Australian Christians and Fluoride Free WA were now ahead of the fourth Labor candidate.

To this point preference had doubled the Australian Christian tally from 2.48% to 5.15%, while Fluoride Free WA had vaulted from 0.38% to 5.86%, rising from the lowest polling party to leap frog nine other parties and the fourth Labor candidate on preferences. The new totals and changes on totals since the count of first preference are shown in the next table.

The fourth Labor candidate Thomas French was now excluded, and as shown below Labor's ticket votes delivered 95.3% of preferences to Green candidate Tim Clifford, putting him ahead of Liberal Alyssa Hayden.

The next candidate excluded was Jamie Van Burgel (Australian Christians). His tally included 7,691 Australian Christian ticket votes and 2,257 Micro Business Party ticket votes with next preference for Fluoride Free WA. There were also 6,391 Shooters, Fishers and Farmers ticket votes with next preference for One Nation. The totals and preference flows from Van Burgel's exclusion are shown below.

The Shooters, Fishers and Farmers ticket votes ensured that One Nation finished ahead of Fluoride Free WA at this point. Had the Shooters, Fishers and Farmers ticket been direct to Fluoride Free WA, One Nation would have been the next excluded party and elected Fluoride Free WA to the fifth seat.

The process of excluding John Watt (Fluoride Free WA) now began. At Senate elections, all ballot papers at the same transfer value are distributed at the same time. Under Senate rules, the exclusion of Watt would have elected Clifford and then Hayden to the final two seats.

However, Western Australia distributes preferences as individual 'bundles' in the order that each bundle was received. In the case of Watt, this resulted Fluoride Free WA ticket preferences being amongst the first distributed, then ticket and other votes from every other excluded candidate in the order that they had been received by Watts.

This order of exclusion resulted in 8,438 ballot papers being distributed representing every ticket vote received by Watt up to the point where he had received Daylight Saving Party preferences. Nine preference tickets were distributed to this point. Those of Independent Cornish (306) and Julie Matheson for WA (1,168) flowed to One Nation, while those of Independents Williams (345), Hewitt (402), Dhu (627) as well as Fluoride Free WA (1,106), Flux the System! (1,246) and Daylight Saving Party (2,353) flowed to the Greens.

After First Partial Exclusion of Watt (FFW)

Candidate (Party)	Preferences		Total Vote	%	Quotas
	Votes	%
CLIFFORD, Tim (GRN) (Elected 5)	+6,872	81.4	49,440	14.77	1.0336

SMITH, Charles (ONP)	+1,535	18.2	35,759	10.68	0.7476
WATT, John (FFW)	-8,438		21,422
Loss by Fraction	0		153

Clifford was declared elected at this point, but his surplus would not be dealt with until the final exclusion of Watt. As an elected candidate, Clifford could receive no further preferences from Watt.

The further exclusion of Watt distributed four more tickets, in order Family First (3,193) and Liberal Democrats (3,302) with next preference for the Liberal Party, and Animal Justice Party (4,502) and Australian Christian (7,691) with next preference for One Nation.

After the distribution of the Australian Christian votes, One Nation's Charles Smith had achieved a quota and was declared elected as the sixth East Metropolitan Region member. The count stopped at this point with undistributed votes remaining with Watt, including 2,257 Micro Business Party ticket votes with next preference for One Nation.

If either Animal Justice or the Australian Christians had listed the Liberal Party ahead of One Nation then the Liberal Party's Alyssa Hayden would have won the sixth and final seat.

On the tally of first preferences, the Labor and Liberal Parties had enough votes to elect two members each. The partial quotas beyond the filled quotas had the Greens leading on 0.6983 from Labor 0.6056, Liberal Party 0.5531, and One Nation 0.4525. The combined total for the other 15 groups on the ballot paper was 0.6905 quotas.

Fourteen groups had been excluded to the point where only five candidates remained in the race for the final two vacancies. Three groups had preference tickets for the Greens, Animal Justice (3,697), Daylight Saving Party (2,451) and Independent Ruzzi (107). Four groups had preferences for One Nation, Shooters, Fishers and Farmers (4,094), Julie Matheson for WA (1,717), Micro Business Party (1,880) and Independent Ammon (288). Six groups had preferences for Family First, Australian Christians (4,848), Liberal Democrats (3,515), Independent Smith (1,492), Flux the System! (1,205), Fluoride Free WA (1,005) and Independent Albert (789). Independent Tucak did not lodge a group voting ticket.

Preferences tickets had allowed Family First to leap frog five other parties and rise from 0.71% to 6.52%. The table below shows the totals for each candidate following the exclusion of Randall (Australian Christians), and the change in votes since the tally of first preferences.

On the exclusion of Henry Heng, Family First tickets (2,238) and Liberal Democrats (3,515) flowed to the Liberal Party. Australian Christian tickets (4,848) flowed to One Nation and Fluoride Free WA (1,005) and Flux the System! (1,205) to the Greens. Only Independent Albert's ticket votes (789) and Independent Smith (1,492) flowed to Labor.

As shown below, the exclusion of Family First saw the third Labor candidate passed by both One Nation and the third Liberal candidate, leaving the Labor candidate as the next to be excluded.

The exclusion of Labor's Shay began with the distribution of his first preferences and of Labor's reduced transfer value ticket votes. Labor's ticket votes had next preference for the Greens producing a 99.3% preference flow and electing Green candidate Alison Xamon to the fifth North Metropolitan Region seat.

Shay's remaining 3,935 votes were now excluded before dealing with Xamon's surplus. Having been declared elected, Xamon could receive no more preferences and the balance of Shay's votes divided between the remaining candidates, Liberal Tjorn Sibma and One Nation's John Bombak.

Shay's remaining vote contained two tickets from Independents, 789 from Albert and 1,492 from Smith, both with next preference for One Nation. The balance of Shay's votes were various below the line votes. The completed distribution of Shay's votes is shown in the next table.

The final count distributed Xamon's substantial surplus. This consisted largely of Green and Labor ticket votes with next preference for the Liberal Party, producing a 89.6% flow of preferences to Liberal candidate Tjorn Sibma, pushing him ahead of One Nation and electing him to the sixth and final vacancy.

Of the other smaller totals of ticket votes, Independent Ruzzi and the Daylight Saving Party had preferences for the Liberal Party. The flow of preference at this point to One Nation comes from largely from ticket votes from Fluoride Free WA, Flux the System! and the Animal Justice Party.

On the tally of first preferences, the Labor Party had enough votes to elect three members and the Liberal Party one. The partial quotas beyond the filled quotas saw the Liberal Party leading with 0.7389 quotas from the Greens 0.6476, One Nation 0.4893, Liberal Democrats 0.2738 and Labor 0.1406. The combined total for the other 20 groups on the ballot paper was 0.7098 quotas.

A feature of the count in South Metropolitan Region was the high vote for the Liberal Democrats compared to the party's results in the other regions. The party polled 13,571 votes in South Metropolitan compared to 10,277 in the rest of the state. South Metropolitan was the only region where the Liberal Democrats appeared to the left of the Liberal Party on the ballot paper and it polled 3.91%. In the regions where the Liberal Democrats appeared to the right of the Liberal Party, it polled 1.03% in East Metropolitan, 1.09% in North Metropolitan, 1.09% in Agricultural, 0.69% in Mining and Pastoral and 0.95% in South West.

Eighteen groups had been excluded to the point where only seven candidates remained in the race for the final two vacancies. Three groups had ticket preferences for the Greens, Animal Justice (4,172), Socialist Alliance (1,044) and Independent Heslington (134), while the Micro Business Party (2,150) and Shooters, Fishers and Farmers (4,945) directed their tickets to the Australian Christians. Some small Independent tickets preferred the Liberals and Liberal Democrats, but most groups preferred the Daylight Saving Party. The Daylight Saving Party's vote swelled from 0.79% to 3.78% at the point where Peter Raffaelli had been excluded.

On the tally of first preferences, the National Party had enough votes to elect two members and the Labor and Liberal Parties one each. The partial quotas beyond the filled quotas saw One Nation leading with 0.8163 quotas to the Labor Party 0.6801, Shooters, Fishers and Farmers 0.3957, Liberal Party 0.3055, Greens 0.2523 and National 0.1481. The combined total for the other 15 groups on the ballot paper was 0.4016 quotas.

Fourteen groups had been excluded to the point where only seven candidates remained in the race for the final two vacancies. The Australian Christian's ticket votes (1,450) were directed to the Shooters, Fishers and Farmers. Most other independents and smaller parties directed their tickets to the Liberal Democrats, including Family First (793), Julie Matheson for WA (227) and Flux the System! (264). The Liberal Democrat tally had tripled from 1.09% to 3.46%, passing the total of the third National candidate. The table below show the total votes and changes in party votes since the initial count of first preferences.

The Greens were now excluded and 2,798 Green ticket votes had next preference for the Labor Party. After the distribution of 3,147 votes including the Green tickets, Labor's Laurie Graham was declared elected. A further 305 mainly below the line votes were distributed after Graham's election, producing the totals shown in the table below.

On the tally of first preferences, the Labor Party had enough votes to elect two members and the National and Liberal Parties one each. The partial quotas beyond the filled quotas saw One Nation leading with 0.9587 to the Greens 0.3974, Labor 0.3912, the Shooters, Fishers and Farmers 0.3604, the Nationals 0.3208 and all other groups (including the Liberal surplus) on 0.5637.

Sixteen groups had been excluded to the point where only eight candidates remained competing for the final two vacancies. Most excluded parties had preferred Flux the System!, including Family First tickets (496), Liberal Democrats (332) and the Daylight Saving Party (241). Flux's vote had increased from 1.02% to 4.32%. The totals and preference flows since the first preference count are shown below.

On the tally of first preferences, the Labor Party had enough votes to elect two members and the Liberal Party one. The partial quotas beyond the filled quotas saw the Nationals leading with 0.8425 quotas to One Nation 0.7443, Liberals 0.5874, Labor 0.5511, the Greens 0.5303, and Shooters Fishers and Farmers 0.2883. The combined total for the other 14 groups on the ballot paper was 0.4561 quotas.

Twelve groups had been excluded to the point where only eight candidates remained in the race for the final three vacancies. Many smaller party preferences flowed to Flux the System!. Amongst the larger party exclusions to this point were Animal Justice (1,441) with next preference for Flux, Family First (1,686) to the Liberal Democrats and Australian Christians (2,998) to Shooters, Fishers and Farmers.

New and Departing Members

Of the 59 members in the old Legislative Assembly, 35 were re-elected, 20 defeated and four retired. All 21 Labor MLAs were re-elected. Of the 31 Liberal MLAs, 10 were re-elected, 18 defeated, two retired and former Liberal MLA Rob Johnson was defeated re-contesting as an Independent. Of the seven National MLAs, five were re-elected, one defeated and one retired.

There were 24 new members elected to the Legislative Assembly at the 2013 election, including two members transferring from the Legislative Council (one Labor, one Liberal). There were 20 new Labor MLAs, all elected in seats gained at the election. Of the three new Liberals, two won seats held by the party before the election while Kalgoorlie was gained from the Nationals. The one new National MLA replaced a retiring MLA.

Note: Bold indicates electorates that also changed party status.

Two MLAs were elected to seats with new names – Liberal Dean Nalder in Bateman (previously represented Alfred Cove) and Labor's Chris Tallentire in Thornlie (previously Gosnells). Liberal Peter Katsambanis in Hillarys and Labor's Amber-Jade Sanderson in Morley were elected after resigning from the Legislative Council. National Paul Brown resigned from the Legislative Council to contest Geraldton but was defeated.

In the Legislative Council 21 members were re-elected and there were 15 new members. Of the 15 departing members, 10 were defeated, three contested the Legislative Assembly with two elected, while two MLCs did not re-contest. Of the 15 new members, five retained seats held by their party while ten represented changes in party representation.

Of the Liberal Party's 17 members in the old Council, seven were re-elected, six defeated, two retired, one was elected to the lower house, Nigel Hallett was defeated after switching to the Shooters, Fishers and Farmers, and there were two new members. Of Labor's 11 members in the old council, nine were re-elected, one defeated, one was elected to the lower house and there were five new members. Three Nationals were re-elected, one defeated, one defeated contesting the lower house and there was one new member.

Of the two Green MLCs, one was re-elected, one defeated and the party gained three new members. Shooters, Fishers and Farmers MLC Rick Mazza was re-elected and the Liberal Democratic Party elected its first members.

Two new MLCs were former members of the Council. Alison Xamon was elected as a Greens MLC for North Metropolitan having previously represented East Metropolitan 2009-13. Labor's Alannah MacTiernan was elected in North Metropolitan having previously represented East Metropolitan 1993-96, the lower house seat of Armadale 1996-2010, the Federal seat of Perth 2013-16, in addition to serving on the City of Perth 1988-94 and as Mayor of Vincent 2011-13.

April 2017	North Metropolitan Region. Elise Irwin (Liberal) elected by re-count to fill the balance of term following the resignation and election to the Legislative Assembly of Peter Katsambanis (Liberal).
April 2017	Agricultural Region. No re-count was held to fill the Agricultural Region vacancy caused by the resignation of Paul Brown (National) to unsuccessfully contest Geraldton in the Legislative Assembly.

SUMMARY OF REDISTRIBUTION

	Liberal	National	Labor
Old Boundaries	31	7	21	59
New Boundaries	32	7	20	59

In summary, the redistribution abolished the Liberal seat of Eyre and created a new and notionally Labor held seat of Baldivis in southern Perth. The Labor held seat of Collie-Preston and West Swan became notionally Liberal held, though both seats were re-contested by their sitting Labor members.
